STRANGERS YET.

Romantic Meeting of a Timid Chicago Girl with a Volunteer Chaperon.

I never pass Carroll avenue but I think of the pretty little story told to a group of friends one evening by one of our charming south side matrons. I was a country school ma'am in Vermont, receiving a salary of $25 a month, when I made up my mind to come to Chicago and learn stenography. I had a sister married and living in a suburb of the city. She promised to help me all she could, and I remained with her until I had finished studying and was ready for a position.

Having obtained the position I discovered that my limited income would not allow me to pay car fare to such a distance as my sister lived. As she and her husband were poor it was decided that I should look for a boarding place on the west side. I searched the papers diligently and found the desired haven on Carroll avenue.

At first I found it very comfortable and easy, and enjoyed coming home after a long day's work and settling myself to sewing or reading. But as the days grew shorter, and the nights set in earlier, I felt myself becoming afraid to walk the two blocks that lay between the street car corner and my room, and this fear was not diminished any after a man had stopped me one evening and I had rushed into the house frightened and breathless from running. It may be very silly to one who has never been afraid, but I suffered cruelly as the car neared my corner, and several nights I could not find the courage to get off, and remained on the car, riding several blocks past, and of course only prolonged the distances of the walk.

One fearfully dark and stormy evening the car was literally packed, and I stood holding on to a strap in the extreme front, when the loneliness of my position, my timidity and thoughts of an employer out of humor all day completely overcame me and I began to cry.

It seemed as if I could not leave the car and step into the darkness and storm. Presently I felt a hand touch me, and a voice said:

"What is the matter?"

"I am afraid to go home," I said. I was 19 years old, but I felt like a baby.

"Where do you get off?" asked the voice.

"At St. John's place," I replied, and just then the conductor called out the street, and I pushed my way to the rear platform and stepped off. As I did so the young man who had questioned me stepped off also, and said:

"I live up this way, and, if you will allow me, I shall see you home."

And all that winter, except the few nights when he did not chance to be on my car, for which I think he must have watched, he saw me home.

I never learned his name or where he lived, nor do I think he knew my name. He never stopped at the door to talk, nor presumed upon his kindness in any way, and when the long days came again he disappeared entirely, and I, soon after leaving the west side, have never seen or heard of him since.

I often think of the incident, though, and as I grow older it shows up to me in a very beautiful light, as compared with so many darker colors that go to make up the annals of evening life in a large city.—Chicago Letter.

Barber Wisdom.

Barbers are not partial to seeing ladies coming into the shop to get their hair cut, for, no matter how pretty the dear creatures look after having their hair cut, they never look as well as they did before, and their first look in the glass makes the fact apparent to them, and they invariably blame the barber for it—claim it was not cut as they directed. It is a fact that about nine out of ten bald headed men are all the time looking for something to make the hair grow, but you never heard of a barber investing a cent for that purpose, and another thing that is just a notion and just as senseless as to suppose that the hair can be restored to a bald head without the use of a wig, and that is that bay rum is beneficial to the face. If you want a good face dressing after shaving use hot soft water. Nothing else is as good.—Interview in Lincoln Journal.

Jewelers Never Get Rich.

"Jewelers never get rich," said a Chicago jeweler. "If we could secure only 10 per cent. of the profits which many people suppose we get we would make more money than we do now. There never has been but one rich jeweler in America. Tiffany, of New York, is a rich man, and he is the only exception. And he made most of his money in the stationery business. There are many rich men in almost any other line of business—rich dry goods merchants, rich hotel men, rich grocers, rich hardware dealers. But jewelers, who are quite generally believed to be, wealthy as a class, are rarely outside of the well to do circle, financially speaking."—Chicago Mail.

A New Kind.

A Nevada paper wants convicted murderers dropped into the shaft of a mine in that state which is 896 feet deep. It says that a person falling will lose all consciousness after descending 400 feet, and the death to be found at the bottom of the shaft will be entirely painless and without any chance of bungling as on a gallows.—Detroit Free Press.

LOVE'S EQUATION.

Scant beauty hers whose beauties tongue can name,
And cold his love whose lips can word its flame—
Sweetheart, thy charms shall never measured be,
Save by that love to which they temper me.
And all the passion reigning o'er my heart
I know but as thy beauty's counterpart.
—Daniel Osborne in Harper's Bazar

To Circumvent Moths.

This is the season when our innocent looking little enemies, the moths, do their destructive work—at least this is the beginning. The small, cream colored moths flying around should be destroyed. They do the mischief, depositing numbers of eggs in woolen and fur garments, carpets, curtains, upholstered furniture—nothing escapes them, and before we know the danger frequently our most cherished garment is riddled by these little pests.

The great trouble comes from not putting things away clean and free from the moth eggs. Articles slightly soiled are certain to attract moths. It is therefore well to wash everything that can be washed, like flannels and stockings. Coats, cloaks, furs and similar things should be cleaned and beaten and aired several times before finally putting away for the summer. When carpets are kept down during the summer, tar paper should be laid under the edges and the room swept carefully with a stiff broom once in a while, particularly the edges of the carpet, corners and seams.—Chicago News.

Numerals That Inform.

Perhaps the most ingenious use of numbers to convey information is due to Mr. Melvil Dewey, state librarian of New York. He has divided literature into ten great departments and given each of them one of the ten numerals. History, for instance, is represented by nine, and every historical work has nine for the first figure in its number.

The second figure denotes the subdivision of history to which a work belongs; seven as a second figure is marked upon volumes treating of North America. Another and similar step gives three as a third figure for histories of the United States.

The works of Mr. George Bancroft, as Mr. Dewey would classify them, would bear the number 973.3. After that number would come the figures pointing out the shelf on which the volumes were to be found. To avoid disarrangement, it is usual in large libraries to leave ample room for new additions in each department; the shelves are not permitted to become quite full.—Youth's Companion.

Pronouncing Modern Greek.

As many may know the pronunciation of the modern Greek language is by accent, and not by quantity, as in England and America has been the custom with ancient Greek ever since the time of Erasmus, the Dutch precursor of Martin Luther. Of late years the American schools have been pronouncing more and more by accent, and the custom has even invaded England and Germany. Now it seems that the German scholars in Athens, noticing the interest taken by the young emperor in matters of education, have petitioned him to make the pronunciation in German schools conform to the usage of the modern Greeks. Were this done it would be much easier for a German in Greece to understand the spoken language, which he can read easily in the newspapers, but cannot comprehend when he hears it at his hotel.—Boston Advertiser.

Remembering His Enemies.

Mr. Edward Wortley Montagu, son of the famous Lady Mary, endeavored to be very sarcastic in his last will and testament. After some insignificant bequest "To my noble and worthy relation the earl of ——," he adds: "I do not give his lordship any further part of my property, because the best part of that he has contrived to take already. Item—To Sir Francis —— I give one word of mine, because he never had the good fortune to keep his own. Item—To Lord M. I give nothing, because I know he will bestow that on the poor. Item—To Sir Robert W. I leave my political opinions, never doubting he can well turn them into cash who has always found such an excellent market for his own."—All the Year Round.

Ears.

If your ears burn, people say some one is talking about you. This is very old, for Pliny says, "When our ears do glow and tingle, some do talk of us in our absence."

Shakespeare, in "Much Ado About Nothing," makes Beatrice say to Ursula and Hero, who had been talking of her, "What fire is in mine ears?"

Sir Thomas Browne ascribes this conceit to the superstition of guardian angels, who touch the right ear if the talk is favorable, and the left if otherwise. This is done to cheer or warn.

One ear tingles, some there be
That are smarting now at me.
—Detroit Free Press

Hope for Him.

"I don't know that you will be able to do much with him," said a father to a principal of a school, to whom he had brought his son as a pupil, "he is so full of mischief."

"Does he tell the truth?" asked the principal. "Can I always depend upon his word?"

"Oh, yes," said the father, "he is honest; he will tell the truth, even when it is against himself; you may depend upon that."

"Then we can manage him," said the principal. "He will make a reliable, manly man."—Christian Leader.

Railway Clerks with Long Days.

The hours on duty of a booking clerk are usually ten a day; but they are at very irregular times. This is on account of trains starting to run as early as 5 a. m. and continuing till midnight. There must be always some one to book the passengers; and as there are nineteen hours to cover, and in many cases only two clerks, they have to work as best they can that both may have time for their meals.—Chambers' Journal.

PINNED A WOMAN TO THE GROUND.

The Matter Made Less Serious by the Fact That She Wore Army Shoes.

Richard M. Sommers, the foreman of the roller department in the mint, was recently chatting with some of the men who had been service in the late war, and, after relating an interesting adventure that had occurred in 1862, said:

But I never was so frightened in my life as I was the day I pinned a fair young rebel to the ground with my bayonet. I thought I had killed her.

The circumstances were these: In August, 1862, when the Philadelphia brigade was moving toward Mine Run, Va., I was detailed from my command, the Seventy-first Pennsylvania volunteers, known as Baker's California regiment, to watch a farmer who was believed to be a spy.

In order to throw him off his guard and also to enable me to learn the better whether he was a spy or not, I was instructed to report at his house, on the Mountain View farm, in Fauquier county, and state that I had come there by command of Colonel W. Penn Smith, in order to protect his home from any straggling soldiers that might trespass with a view to foraging on the premises.

I was well received by the family, who, living in that out of the way country, were quite timid and in constant fear of the passing troops. I was housed there, and fed at their expense, and soon I realized that the hospitality of Virginia's first families was all that it was reported to be. The two pretty girls, sisters, one a blonde and the other a brunette, were at first a little shy of the "wild Yankee," as they called me, but we soon became friends, however, although they would persist in telling me the Confederate cause was just, and that the Union troops were invaders, and all that sort of thing.

The Mountain View farm covered a good many acres of ground, but the owner was poor at that time, and "sweet sixteen," as I called the pretty blonde, had no shoes with which to cover her well shaped little feet. Now I had a brand new pair of army shoes in my knapsack and a fairly good pair on my feet. I asked her if she would wear my new pair if I would make her a present of them. She seemed a little loath to accept them at first, not because of pride, but because she thought it unfair to take them from a soldier who might soon stand in need of them himself. But at last she did accept them, and was real well pleased to do so. Of course, they were a mile too big for her, but that didn't matter. She soon got used to them.

It used to be her custom to watch for foraging soldiers and then to send us after them to drive them away. One morning she said: "Oh, Yank! there is a forager out there. Don't you see him? There he goes under the trees over there."

I started out after the intruder, but I ran all over the part of the farm indicated without seeing any one. It was very warm, and I was very warm and tired when I returned. On seeing her I told her that I could find no one, when she laughed right in my face and said:

"I just fooled the wild Yank for fun." It was fun for her, but not for me. However, I laughed with her. Just then I put my gun down on the ground, as was my habit, bayonet downward, intending to stick it into the ground and thus let the piece stand reversed, but instead of that I stuck it through her shoe and pinned the beautiful girl fast!

I was never so frightened in my life as I was then. I would not have harmed the young woman for the world; she had become to me like a sister.

Maybe I wasn't glad when I saw a twinkle in her bright, blue eyes, and heard her sweet voice ringing in laughter as she said:

"Well, Yank, you did not hurt me a bit, you know these shoes are a trifle large for me, and your bayonet just went through the upper and sole without grazing my toes."

I was rejoiced to hear her talk that way, I assure you. I was taken away from there in a few days after that, it having been found that her father was not what he was suspected to be. But I often thought about that family, especially of one member, in my marches and in later years, but I never met again with any member of it. Not even with my pretty "sweet sixteen" friend, for I was engaged in a great deal of active service in the army, and when I was mustered out of it I returned to Philadelphia and never went back to Virginia.—Philadelphia Press.

Intelligence in Mice.

The organs of hearing and smelling in mice are very efficient; but their eyesight is, we believe, poor. Their intelligence is, we should think, low, as might be expected from the paucity of convolutions in their brains. We suspended a tin of flour at such a height from the ground that our little friends could not quite jump into it, though the smell of the food made them very persevering in their endeavors to do so. We then arranged a string so that by a detour they could get at the good stuff that way.

One mouse by following that course attained to the desired goal, but evidently by chance, for being startled out of the tin, it continued for a long while to make futile efforts to recover its lost position by jumping up, never again seeking the road which had led it before to the object of its desire. For hours we have lain in bed watching mice trying in vain to spring into the tin of flour, none of them ever perceiving that there was a feasible road leading thereto.—Chambers' Journal.

A Valuable Set of Vestments.

A famous old set of vestments now in the cathedral sacristy was a gift to the late Archbishop Hughes. On these vestments, which were of the finest gold cloth, was worked the archbishop's coat of arms. They were embroidered in gold and incrusted with jewels. This set comprises vestments for twelve priests besides the archbishop. It is valued at $20,000, and was imported from Lyons. Archbishop Corrigan wears these vestments occasionally.—New York Herald.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

SONOMA, AUGUST 15, 1891.

MR. CLEVELAND is so much worried over being an ex-President that he wants the people to help him get rid of the "ex." This worry is a very common disease among all ex-officials.

JUDGE OGDEN HOFFMAN, died in San Francisco, after a lingering illness, at the age of 69 years. In his demise the State has lost one of its ablest jurists, a deep student, a learned man. For over forty years he had decided the most intricate legal questions that appear on our records and his opinions almost without exception were as plain as the statutes themselves.

WHILE Secretary Foster cannot be commended for all of his official acts yet his actions in declining to allow Assistant Secretary Crounse and Treasurer Nebeker to appoint their sons to be their private secretaries must be upheld. Heretofore and especially within the past few years there has been entirely too much sonism and cousinism, etc, It required a man with grit to stop it and Foster has proven himself to the emergency.

IN the death of Colvin, the man shot at Oakland by J. G. Howell for forcing his attentions upon the latter's daughter, the people of the State may consider they have gotten rid of a nuisance. Men of his ilk and journals, such as he was engaged in the publication of, may be fittingly termed the hyenas of true journalism. It is cowardly enough to attack men in the blackmailing methods he pursued, but the unprincipled manner in which he attacked an innocent girl courted no better fate.

THE proposed establishing of a silk factory at our county seat and promotion of seri-culture throughput the county, as well as our lately established ramie industry, experts on both of which have pronounced the county well adapted to, tends only to bring out the fact that Sonoma county is capable of a great diversification of products. That her industries, now innumerable, are capable of a large increase in number. This new feature, however, is well adapted to the small land owner and renter; the capital necessary needs be but small; no expensive machinery is required and a permanent market for the product is guaranteed by the company.

AN article in favor of poultice pavement, appearing recently in one the city dailies states that said pavement laid an inch and a quarter thick at a cost of ten cents per square foot would keep and had been kept in perfect repair for a space of six years time. The fact that the streets in San Jose laid between one and two years ago are being repaired and that more of the stuff is being laid at a cost of twenty-seven cents per square foot tends very much to disprove any such statements as those made by the advocate of the bituminous rock ring. Basalt is the only true cheap and wearing pavement. Sad and expensive experience is bringing light to the eyes of those who have allowed the wool to be pulled over their eyes during the past few years.

Elsewhere will be found a notice of the arrangement by which the INDEX-TRIBUNE can be clubbed with the Weekly San Francisco Examiner. The Weekly Examiner is considered to be one of the best newspapers published in the United States, and is certainly the best printed on the Pacific Coast, which everybody is interested in hearing from in view of the marvelous growth of California and the Northwestern States. The publisher of the Examiner is W. R. Hearst, only son of the late Senator Hearst, who has expended an enormous amount of money in establishing the paper and making a success of it; and his liberal offers to subscribers have been so effective that in California, Oregon and Washington almost every one takes the Examiner. Our offer to furnish both papers for $3 75 is an exceedingly liberal one, and we expect to obtain a large list of subscribers for the Examiner, as well as for the INDEX-TRIBUNE; so that some of the magnificent premiums in the Examiner's $125,000 list will come into this neighborhood. Every subscriber gets one of the magnificent premium pictures with the Examiner, besides what may be given in the grand distribution of $125,000 in extra premiums worth from 50 cents to $6,000 each.

Written for the INDEX-TRIBUNE.)

"IF THOU FAINT NOT!"

Art weary friend! and doth the road seem long—
O'er which thou travelest slowly day by day!
Do clouds appear and not one sweet bird's song
Break forth to cheer the on thy lonely way?

Is all around you desolate and drear—
As on thou toilest through the noon-day heat?
Thy soul o'erwhelmed with sorrow and with fear
And bruised and torn, thy tired and dusty feet?

No refreshing breeze with healing on its wings—
No fragrant groves to tempt the with their shade.;
No fern-lined flowing brooks or sparkling springs
Are for thy joy and comfort here displayed

But falter not--have faith O weary heart!
Help cometh soon--and in a few days more—
One will appear, who from the ne'er will part,
Then will thy sorrows cease--thy trials be o'er.

No longer then wilt thou walk on alone,
By His dear side will thou forget thy fears;
With joy thou'lt reap, what was in anguish sown,
His hand Divine will wipe away thy tears.

Lean on his love--turn though away from sin,
And no more let his promise be forgotten;
Let not thy faith or courage fail--"for in Due season shalt thou reap, if thou faint not."

The committee appointed to inspect the new bridge across the south fork of the Gualala on the line of the Stewart's Point and Skagg's Spring road, having filed their report, were discharged.

The Clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for the removal of the old wooden bridge across the Sonoma creek near the Embarcadero and re-erecting the same at San Luis near Vollmar Hotel.

John Werritt was appointed a member of the County Board of Horticultural Commissioners.

A number of the bridges in the Stewart's Point road district being in an unsafe condition for travel, and there being no money in the said road district fund, the road overseer of the district was instructed to make the necessary repairs, the same to be paid for out of the general fund, provided the cost of the work does not exceed $150.

In the matter of the complaint of G Watson against the Duncan's Mill Lumber Company for obstructing the Austin creek road by erecting a dam across the said creek, Mr. Mead moved that the Clerk be authorized to notify the Lund and Lumber Company to construct at once a road on the bank of the creek for the use of G Watson and others and around said dam for the use of the traveling public between Cazadero and Duncan's Mills, and that said new road must be completed before, Sept. 10 n

The motion prevailed.

The Parent of Insomnia.

The parent of insomnia or wakefulness is in nine cases out of ten a dyspeptic stomach. Good digestion gives sound sleep, indigestion interferes with it. The brain and stomach sympathizes. One of the prominent symptoms of a weak state of the gastric organs is a disturbance of the great nerve entrepot, the brain. Invigorate the stomach, and you restore equilibrium to the great center. A most reliable medicine for the purpose is Hoste ter's Stomach Bitters, which is far preferable to mineral sedatives and powerful narcotics which, though they may for a time exert a soporific influence upon the brain, soon cease to act, and invariably injure the tone of the stomach. The Bitters, on the contrary, restore activity to the operations of that all important organ, and their beneficent influence is reflected in sound sleep and a tranquil state of the nervous system. A wholesome impetus is likewise given to the action of the liver and bowels by its use.

YOU WANT

a San Francisco paper and of course you want a good one. The WEEKLY EXAMINER fills the want completely, for it is the best. It gives you every week not only all the news, but the best literary and miscellaneous matter published on the American continent—that is its specialty; being the best. It wants your subscription—yours particularly—and offers not only to you, but to every other subscriber, one or more attractive premiums.

In the first place, it gives every subscriber, one of the four magnificent etchings or paintings described below, and delivers it safely at his address, postage paid.

"The Retreat from Moscow," by Meissonier,
"The Roman Chariot Race," by A. Wagner.

Each of these pictures is reproduced in fac simile, showing every tint and color of the great originals, either one of which could not be purchased for $100,000.

"Women and Children First," by C. Napier Hemy,
"Christ Leaving the Prætorium," by Gustave Doré.

Each of these pictures is reproduced in photogravure, size 21x28 inches, and eminently fitted for framing, and will adorn the walls of the most refined house.

Each subscriber has the choice of any one of these four pictures, which will be mailed him in a tube direct from the EXAMINER office, as soon as the subscription is received.

In the second place, it will give 5,000 premiums, valued in the aggregate at about $125,000 to its subscribers this year. If there are 50,000 subscribers, one in ten will get one of these premiums; if there are 100,000, only one in twenty. But no matter how many there are, each and every one of these premiums—which range in value from 50 cents to $6,000—will be given absolutely without cost to some of those who have paid $1.50 for the WEEKLY EXAMINER for one year. The EXAMINER is thoroughly responsible, as you know, or as Wells, Fargo & Co. or any bank or commercial agency in San Francisco will assure you, and the leading men of the city will see that its premiums are distributed exactly as agreed and that every subscriber no matter where he is located, will receive just what is assigned to him.

Of course you want your home paper also, and you can just as well as not save a little money by taking the EXAMINER with it. The price of the WEEKLY EXAMINER is $1.50 per year, including the premium picture and your share of the $125,000 list of premiums, which are fully described in the twelve page Premium Supplement, which will be sent free on application to

The benevolent actions of Mrs. Senator Hearst in this valley are to be commended. Not only has she been generous to all the school districts lying adjacent to her home but also to private families. Destructive Fire.

Very Narrow Escape of Sonoma Valley Farms and Orchards.

A Portion of El Verano Goes Up In the Flames---Houses. Barns, Hay and Fencing Licked Up by the Devouring Element.

Sonoma Valley has been visited the past few weeks by two af the most destructive field and forest fires ever known in its history.

On Saturday morning last about 10:30 o'clock while Chas. Faithful was engaged in burning dry grass off his place on the El Verano tract with criminal carelessness he allowed the flames to get beyond his controll, and in less than an hour afterward almost the entire tract, comprising 770 acres, was a sheeting mass of fire and smoke. At first the flames spread with great rapidity, burning, fanned by a strong northwesterly wind, up the valley for a time it looked as though every ranch on the west side of the Sonoma creek from El Verano to Glen Ellen was doomed. The flames, however, were stopped by the hundreds of fire-fighters who came from every direction, just before reaching the Frederickson place, several miles from the starting point.

In the meantime the wind changed right about and drove the flames down the valley over that portion which had escaped being burned, while the fire was rushing up the valley, and in a short time the town of El Verano, comprising twenty-five or thirty houses, the Southern Pacific Company's depot were surrounded with flames from the dry grass which had been allowed to grow in that almost deserted village. By great exertions on the part of the citizens of Sonoma and farmers of the surrounding country, the fire was prevented from reaching the railroad company's property.

In a short time after the fire had invaded El Verano six unoccupied cottages, costing on an average about $1200 each were a mass of of flames and were soon licked up by the devouring element.

Several occupied houses were saved, notable among these being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Warriner which caught fire on the roof and was put out by two or three citizens from Sonoma who seeing the danger the house was in left the main body of the fire-fighters and mounting the steep roof succeeded in arresting the progress of the flames.

The fire after licking up almost everything in its path in El Verano rapidly spread to the farms of C. F. Carmer, C. C. Carriger, A. Dominiconi, L. P. Collins, George Engler and G. P. C. Sears, the latter three being on the east side of Sonoma creek. For a time it looked as though the above farms with their residences, wine cellars, barns and outbuildings were doomed, but the large body of fire-fighters, numbering several hundred, beat the flames back and saved much valuable property, and after fighting the fire continuously for seven hours it was at last got under control, after burning over an area of about five miles in length by one in breadth. The principal losses were as follows:

El Verano Improvement Company, six house, pasture and a large quantity of fencing.

C. F. Carmer, hay, pasturage, wood and fencing.

C. C. Carriger, hay, pasturage and fencing.

G. C. P. Sears, vineyard destroyed fencing and pasturage burned up.

A. Dominiconi, barn, fencing and hay.

L. P. Collins, hay and fencing.

Geo. Engler, fruit trees, fencing and pasture.

At one time when the flames leaped Sonoma creek on the Engler place, the town of Sonoma was in imminent danger and the fire department was ordered out to be in readiness to arrest the flames at the outskirts of town. Fortunately the wind died out shortly after the arrival of the fire apparatus and the flames, which were traveling rapidly toward town through the Collins and Engler farms, were subdued, but not without great difficulty.

During the progress of the fire the wives and daughters and employees of the farmers whose places were threatened rode around and dispensed refreshments with open handed hospitality to the thirsty, hungry and tired fire-fighters, while Messrs. Sears, Engler, Dominiconi and others threw the doors of their wine cellars wide open to the intrepid men who had fought so hard to save their property.

In a match game of base ball between two clubs of school boys Friday afternoon, the score stood 48 to 41. Prof. Watson officiated as scorer, R. A. Poppe as umpire. It was reported as being very exciting and an animated game.

Another Fire.

The Chinese Quarters on the Dresel Place Consumed.

Fire Spreads to the Hills and Starts a Destructive Forest Conflagration---Force Much Abated but Still Burning.

On Tuesday afternoon last the Chinese quarters on the Dresel place caught on fire by some means unknown and the buildings and contents were entirely consumed. The flames soon spread to the dry grass and brush on the hillside in the rear of the buildings and in a short time after the fire was discovered the mountains overlooking the valley to the eastward were belching forth fire and smoke. People flocked from every direction and with axes and wet sacks fought back the flames from the Dresel, Gundlach and Winkle farms and sent them roaring over the mountain toward Loveall Valley, where they were again fought back in the direction of the ground already burned over. By night the wind died out and the fire-fighters, thinking the flames under control retired from the contest and wended their way homeward. About two o'clock on the afternoon of the following day, however, the fire again started up and rushed with great rapidity, the flames leaping high in the air with a roar, up mountain and down mountain. Again the fire-fighters were to rescue and heroically fought the flames until they became exhausted.

In the evening news reached Sonoma that the fire was threatening Mrs. R. C. Johnson's Buena Vista ranch and other mountain farms to the eastward of town, and a number of fresh men some twenty-five or thirty in number, among them were some of Sonoma's leading citizens, started for the scene of the fire about 8 o'clock in the evening, and after penetrating into the mountains for a distance of several miles over a dangerous trail were met by the foreman of the ranch, who had full charge, Mrs. Johnson being absent, who stated that all danger was passed, and tired, thirsty, and footsore, the volunteer fire fighters wended their way wearly back to Buena Vista Park where they arrived at 11:30 o'clock, after which they returned to their respective homes.

On Thursday word was again sent to Sonoma for men to aid in fighting the fire, which had broken out fresh and threatened the Buena Vista Park and with her usual generosity Sonoma sent out almost every abled-bodied man in the town, who fought the flames through the night.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1891.

Felt That He Had Been Cheated.

A young clam farmer from Canarsie, accompanied by his 250 pound wife, created much amusement on a bridge train coming to Brooklyn Sunday a little before midnight. The cars were as well filled as is usual at that hour. The rustics drew attention to themselves by the loud tones of their conversation. "Now, baby," the man was saying, "you know I ain't a bit stingy and I wouldn't care for the money at all, but I don't want any catfish of a toll grabber to do the dead swindle on me—Sunday nights anyway."

"Oh, never mind, Reuben," said "baby" consolingly.

"Well, now, baby, you can see for yourself. There's eighty-four cents out of a dollar. Do you see that? That shark has kept back ten cents on me. It ain't the money I care for, baby. Here, do you want it?"

"No; I don't want it. I wish you would keep quiet."

"Well, if you don't want it, here goes," scattering the change on the floor.

"Baby" maintained a stolid silence, gazing ruefully at the coin on the floor. Finally Reuben realized that he had been guilty of criminal waste, and he said: "Well, if you don't want it, I'll take it," and he began clumsily to pick the money out of the spaces in the matting. At this point a general laugh arose from the other passengers. When the Brooklyn station was reached the farmer was still mourning his missing dime, and when I left his ponderous wife was struggling to prevent him from taking the next train to New York to get hunk with "that pirate" at the toll box.—Brooklyn Eagle.

He Didn't Strike.

A hurrying crowd was pushing its way down the broad steps of the elevated platform at the city hall elevated station Wednesday afternoon. A handsomely dressed woman, accompanied by a tall man of the sporting class, moved leisurely along, trailing a foot and a half of her skirts behind her. A big, clumsy boy in his eagerness to reach the street planted a heavy foot on the trailing skirt, almost throwing the woman over backward. Naturally she was very angry and speedily found some very harsh words to bestow on the boy. Her male companion was angry, too, and at the foot of the stairs he collared the lad and raised his cane to administered chastisement. But the blow did not fall. A burly workingman caught the arm to which the cane was attached and half a dozen determined voices exclaimed, "Don't hit that boy!"

The tall sporting man braced himself for a fight, when a mild looking young gentleman looked him fixedly in the eye and said: "See here, my friend, you had better calm down right away. You have got the unpopular end of this dispute. If you have ever walked down stairs behind a woman who lets her skirts drag, you ought to understand what the public sentiment is on that subject." The sporting man made no reply. He let go of the boy and walked rapidly away, followed by a very indignant and talkative woman.—New York Times.

A Cause of Depression.

There is another and equally important cause of mental depression and physical disorganization as is that of overeating, and lack of sufficient exercise. This is the constant application to occupation which is in vogue in this country. Men and women alike, since women are formidable competitors of men in professional pursuits, have a practice of going on in the same treadmill manner, year after year, without any lapse for rest. We live in this country at too high a pressure, in a business sense. Men engage of course in business, more actively and in greater numbers than women, yet being brought into so close contact with the former, women naturally absorb not only personal interest, but are often plunged into its vortex, and become as bound up by its demands as the men themselves.

It is not unusual, in fact, for women to assume and carry out the management of the counting room, office and store as well as the household. The strain of these demands upon the system is naturally very great under the most favorable conditions, when the body is nurtured and rested in a reasonable manner. —Jenness-Miller Magazine.

Men Who Eat Pie.

A truly charming gentleman is Mr. Edmund Russell, apostle and expounder of the Delsartean faith. We take back all the uncivil and cruel things we have uttered against old Delsarte and his creed, for we have seen Mr. Russell eat pumpkin pie at Rector's restaurant late of nights. In the whole wide range of philosophy there is none other that appeals more directly or more potently to our sympathies than does that philosophy which justifies by practice the eating of pumpkin pie.

Mr. Whittier, the Amesbury poet, is as famous a punisher of pie as Ralph Waldo Emerson was, and that is saying much, for Emerson was mighty in the pursuit, comprehension, mastication, digestion and assimilation of that cheering viand. Apple pie, however, and not pumpkin, was Emerson's favorite diet, and is Whittier's.—Eugene Field in Chicago News.

Blood Oranges Cannot Be Stained.

"Blood oranges" have been investigated by order of the health officer of Washington. The story that they are "fixed" with a syringe and a little aniline dye has been [illegible] papers. It was seen by Dr. Townsend, and as the supply of "blood oranges" in the Washington market seemed to be abundant, he directed an inquiry with a view of condemning the fruit if it had been tampered with. The chemist to whom the matter was referred says in his report: "The oranges are naturally stained, no artificial coloring of any kind having been used. The small spot on the side is a fungus spot and not a puncture. It is impossible to stain an orange by injecting any artificial staining fluid [illegible] before or after plucking from the tree.—Washington Letter.

THE Bravest Book OF '91,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

and [illegible] Heidenburgh.

Of the 2,772,408 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 300 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for Distinguished Bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. Then the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their country men, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seem astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every Soldier and Sailor, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 600 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, and is especially rich in the work.

It ranks of [illegible] and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.
